

ANIMAL ATTITUDE!

It's time to test your observational and dramatic skills! Pick an animal. Study them closely in books, videos or even in real life!

Observe how and why they move their bodies in different ways:

Are they fast or slow? Can they fly? Do they swim? How do they hold their bodies? Are they close to the ground? Do they stand up tall or stoop over? What noises do they make?

Really pay attention to the details. Once you are ready, stand in front of a mirror and act as your chosen animal! How can you move your body to match their movements? Can you mimic the sounds they make?

Once you're ready, perform as the animal in front of a friend or family member and see if they can guess which animal you are portraying. If they guess correctly, ask them what it was that gave it away! Why not try a few more animals and mix it up a bit? You could try out different birds, mammals, amphibians, reptiles, fish and even invertebrates like insects and arachnids!

Have fun!
